

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 11

WASHINGTON WEEKLY
2 SEPTEMBER 1980

S A R A H

Since Senator James Sasser of Tennessee denounced the widespread mailing of important technological information to Soviet Russia by the obsolete statute permitting this in the Library of Congress, Commerce Department, Central Intelligence Agency, and elsewhere, the Department of Defense and the CIA are working on new rules tightening up the free flow of information considered in the public domain, so that Sasser can write a better law . . .

EXCERPTED